Payment to Agency Report

Michael Kenney, Associate Energy Specialist
Forum on White Certificates – Savings & Efficient Use of Energy in Mexico
Mexico City, October 22-24, 2018

Attachment, Section 2

The German International Aid Agency, Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ), is a service provider in the field of international cooperation for sustainable development and international education work. GIZ is dedicated to shaping a “future worth living around the world.” GIZ has over 50 years of experience in a wide variety of areas, including energy and the environment. Further, as a key partner in implementing the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change’s 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development – an overarching framework for international cooperation which provides a path forward for national and international sustainable development policy – GIZ is using its extensive international experience and contacts in emerging economies and developing and industrialized countries to link the environmental, economic, and social dimensions of sustainability and help advance implementation of the 2030 Agenda.

Section 3.2

As part of its work to assist Mexican partners to implement projects in the fields of environmental and resources conservation, climate change mitigation, and sustainable energy, the German International Aid Agency, Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ), organized a Forum on White Certificates workshop, in cooperation with the Mexican Energy Secretary, SENER, and the Mexican Environmental Secretary, SEMARNAT, to explore ways to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The workshop organizers requested the California Energy Commission to send a representative to participate in the workshop and share California’s strategy for meeting its energy efficiency goals, as well as the possibility of California’s potential involvement in expanding the energy efficiency market into Mexico. As part of the ask, the organizers offered to cover all related costs of travel, including transportation, lodging, and meals.

Additionally, the California Energy Commission’s participation in the Forum on White Certificates workshop will help expand cooperation with Mexico and fulfills the goals and intent of the MOU signed between California and Mexico National Ministry of Energy to cooperate on clean energy – specifically to encourage and promote technical cooperation and activities in the fields of low-carbon energy, clean technologies, and energy efficiency in a manner that incorporates best practices and lessons learned.
