2. Entity's Business Activity:

The Western Interstate Energy Board (WIEB) is a regional organization of western states and Canadian provinces established under the Western Interstate Nuclear Compact to support cooperative energy policy. Its work is carried out primarily through committees, including those focused on nuclear waste transportation and regional electric power system coordination.

3.2. Payment Description:

Commissioner McAllister will attend the CREPC-WIRAB Spring Joint Meeting. The meeting is a gathering of state, provincial, and federal representatives, as well as industry experts, to facilitate discussion and improve the common understanding of energy issues in the Western Interconnection. California is seeking ways to improve the reliability and affordability of our electricity system. As a part of the Western Interconnection, integrating the Western energy market in collaboration with the rest of the West is essential to maintaining reliability and increasing the affordability of California's electricity system. It is imperative for the Energy Commission and California to participate in meetings with other Western state officials and stakeholders to coordinate on a framework for a regional energy market footprint.
